LONDON BY GAS LIGHT AND DAY LIGHT.

MR. EDITOR:

Mr. W. Bell from England lectured here on Tuesday evening the 25th, on "London by Gas Light," and again on Thursday evening on "Rambles in London and what I saw there."

Mr. Bell's lecture on "London by Gas Light," is certainly a treat. He has labored in the City among the lowest classes of society, and is thoroughly conversant with London life in all its phases. To give an idea of the extent of London, he said that it is 15 miles in length, 10 miles across, and 50 in circumference. If the inhabitants stood side by side, just allowing standing room for each, they would extend 900 miles. Were you to have them pass some given point at the rate of one every second for 10 hours each day, it would be 14 weeks before all would have passed that point. Again there is a death every eight and a birth every six minutes. He took us to the Gin Palaces and showed us some of the scenes to be seen there. There are in round numbers 10,000 Public houses in London, while there are only 1300 churches, of all denominations, and, said he, no one minister can counteract the evil influences of 10 Public houses. He pictured some of the fearful scenes to be witnessed in the slums and alleys of the city, from the effects of strong drink. He showed up the thieves and pick-pockets, and how they learned their profession. He took us to Spurgeon's Chapel with its congregation of 6000, to Exeter Hall, where the great May meetings are held, and to the large building where Moody spoke and Sankey sang to congregations of 20,000 hearers at a time. On Thursday evening he took us to

THE COUNCILLORS' PAY.

Ed. EXPRESS.

The remarks made in your paper of 13th inst., expressing regret and surprise, that the old Councillors, at the late municipal election, neglected giving an account of their stewardship respecting the finances, &c., of the town, has induced me to make the following inquiries and suggestions:—

Would you have the goodness to inform the public through your valuable paper, by what authority our Town Councillors pay themselves $20 each, yearly, (intensively in some instances as members of Committees,) but in reality in their capacity as Councillors. If the Municipal Act authorizes these payments, well and good, the tax payers must submit, if not, then it becomes rather a serious matter. I understand these payments have extended over a period of some ten years, more or less, and as the corporation comprises 12 members, at $20 each, or $240 yearly, amounting in the aggregate to between $2000 and $3000.

Now this is a nice little sum of money, and if the said sum of money, or any other sum is paid illegally for said purpose, it should be refunded with interest to the corporation, by the parties who received it, to be applied towards reducing the debt of the town. If on the contrary, as before stated, it is lawful according to the Municipal Act to pay the members of the Town Council $20 each, per annum, it will be quite easy for some member of the board to point out the clause in the Act for that purpose.

INSOLVENT ACT OF 1875.

In the matter of Wm. McMullen, an Insolvent gation of 6000, to Exeter Hall, where the great May meetings are held, and to the large building where Moody spoke and Sankey sang to congregations of 20,000 hearers at a time.

On Thursday evening he took us to the British Museum, where he showed us some of the many interesting sights to be seen there, among others the Mummies of Egypt, who had slept the long sleep of 3,600 years, and who perhaps lived in the days of Joseph or his father Jacob. The slabs from ancient Nineveh, on which is written the history of that great city, confirming the authority of the Holy Bible. Thence we went with him to the National Gallery, and saw some of the great works of art, especially Cruickshank's fine painting representing the worship of Bacchus. From there to the Tower of London, where we read the history of the country in the old armour displayed there, ancient headsman's block and axe, on which many a good man had lost his life for daring to have a mind of his own; then he showed us the Crown and Jewels which cost about one million pounds. We then went with him to St. Pauls, and then to Westminster Abbey, where the Kings and Queens of England have been crowned for centuries, and where repose England's honored dead, and among them David Livingstone, once a poor weaver lad, and ultimately the great and noble African Missionary.
Thence to the House of Parliament, and the Bible Society's rooms, where we saw stacks of Bibles in almost every language, and he said at the present rate of printing the Good Book, it would require 500 years to put a copy in the hands of every man, woman and child in the world, but take the money spent in one year on drink in Canada and England, and you will within two years be able to give a forty cent copy to every inhabitant of the globe.
From these rooms we proceeded to the Crystal Palace, and then returning to London, we saw a London Sabbath, when you may hear the first preachers of the day, or you may see some of the markets and shops as busy as if it were the middle of the week. Were all the shops doing business on the Lord's day put in a row, they would make a street 60 miles long. He took us to the Midnight Meetings for the reclaiming of fallen women, to the Servants Home, Ragged Schools, Ragged Churches,
Sick Children's Home, and Miss Cooper's Work. This Lady is doing a great work among the poor and destitute Street Arabs.

It is reported that the Dominion Government are about to adopt strong measures for preserving the Buffalo, and it is to be hoped such is the case, as it is not too late yet, but whatever is to be done should be done at once.
Not many years ago these animals ranged through the vast prairies stretching to the Rocky Mountains unmolested, but as the great North-West Territory began to be known and opened up by white men and half-breeds, the buffalo began to die out. Year after year thousands of these animals are needlessly slaughtered. Indians have killed them for food as they were required. Half-breeds and white men have killed them, some for sport only, others merely for the sake of their tongues, leaving the carcass and skin lying on the ground. Others, again, took the skin for robes, and left the carcass. Were these things to go on, in a very few years no buffalo would remain, and the Indians and half-breed settlers, as well as the white men, would be in a starving condition, as most of these people live on the plains hunting, few of them doing little farming or caring to do so, their habits being careless and indifferent as to the future. If the Government will adopt prompt measures during the calving season, say from January to May, their needless destruction will be stopped, so that any buffalo meat wanted could be got during the other eight months of the year. Can nothing, however, be done towards trying to induce the half-breed settlers to farm.
And Indians too?

KINGSTON STREET RAILWAY.

A Bill of the Kingston Street Railway Company, which has received a second reading, is before us. The capital stock of the Company will be $50, 000. When $10,000 of stock is subscribed and ten per cent. of it paid the Company may commence to run cars within two years from the time of the passing of the Act, or the charter will become void. The Board of Directors shall consist of six members. The bill empowers the builders to "construct, maintain, complete and operate, on Sundays and weekdays, a double or single track iron railway with the necessary side tracks and turnouts for the passage of cars, carriages and other vehicles adapted to the same, upon and along such streets and highways within the jurisdiction of the city, but we believe this clause has been amended, only allowing the construction of a single track. It is provided that the fare on the railway shall not exceed five cents for any distance not over three miles within the limits of the city, and one cent additional over three miles, the return fare to be charged separately.—Whig.

HOW TO CREATE BUSINESS.

An old merchant, whose ample fortune was acquired by judicious advertising, says: It is thought absurd for a man to sit and wait for trade. Micawbers in business do not, in fact, make large fortunes. "But," say some men, "I cannot leave my store to go about and stir up my trade." Perhaps, indeed, he cannot, but he can send out his winged messengers of enterprise in the shape of such lively advertisements as will cause people to "stop and talk" with him before buying elsewhere. Advertisements are good scouts and first-rate skirmishers.

One cannot easily get away from the effect of advertising. If a man advertises that his stock is fresh and fashionable, it is difficult to believe that he has not really a finer stock than those who do not so advertise. This influence of advertising affects the natural qualities of a human being, and may be safely appealed to.

We have heard whether the young ladies of this town have begun to take advantage of the privileges conferred upon them by leap year in the matrimonial line. If they have not, we warn them that time is on the wing. It is very well understood, to go a little deeper into the subject, that in three years out of every four, man has the privilege of "popping the question," and the annoyance of having a plain-spoken No! for the reply. On the fourth year woman may propose, if it so please her. In the event of refusing, the penalty, we believe, is that the gallant gentleman shall present the tender damsel with a new silk dress. There is a reservation, however, that the right to claim this penalty depends on the circumstances that when she proposed, the damsel was the wearer of a scarlet petticoat, which (or a little of lower portion of which) she must exhibit to the gentleman, the understood idea being that the silken dress shall cover the petticoat, and thus assuage dire feminine indignation at the rejection of her offered hand. It is stated that in a book entitled "Courtship, Love and Matrimony," published in 1660, ten years before the death of Shakspeare, is this explanation regarding ladies' privileges in leap year: "Albeit, it is now become a part of the common law, in regards to social relations of life, that as often as every bissextile year doth return, the ladies have the sole privilege, during the time it continueth, of making love unto the men, which they doe, either by words or looks, at them it seemeth prefer; and moreover, no man will be entitled to the benefit of clergy who dothe in any wise treat her proposal with slight or contumely." This, therefore, is the law and if you do not act upon it we, at least, shall have done our duty in pointing out and making plain the way.

THE FISHERY INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The annual report of the Fishery Overseer of the Bay of Quinte division shows the yield and value of fish caught to be largely in excess of the preceding year.

The whitefish caught were generally of extraordinary size and superior quality.

There are natural causes which act upon and do effect the Fisheries. Among the most noticeable are the prevailing high winds, which have in a degree caused the diminution of the choice kinds of fish for a few years past.

The sudden influx and receding of the water from large to lesser bodies and their tributaries, will impede and change the usual course of the fish from their wonted feeding grounds and spawning beds, and cause them to seek other places, thus lessening this choice kind of fish for a time in certain localities.

More fish are destroyed wantonly and unnecessarily by the destructive mode of fishing with gill nets than from any other cause. The nets are allowed to remain for an indefinite period, and when they are set across the channel or allowed to interfere with the course or passage instinctively chosen by the fish leading to their feeding ground or spawning beds, it will divert them from their usual course and cause them to seek other and different places for feeding grounds and spawning beds.

If this mode of fishing should be an act of the Dominion Legislature be entirely prohibited and a rigid enforcement of the Fisheries Act be insisted upon the time will not be far distant when the Fisheries of the Bay of Quinte will stand among the first in commercial value in Ontario.

The doubtful problem of breeding fish, which existed for a time has been finally solved by practical demonstrations in this as well as other counties.

The Bill for the payment of Crown witnesses in criminal cases provides that in case of a prosecution or trial for treason or felony, or any offence which is punishable by imprisonment only, or any offence for which whipping may be imposed, the judge who holds the Court before which a prosecution or trial for the offence takes place may grant to any one who attends on recognizance or subpoena to give evidence, or who gives evidence, on the part of the Crown, an order for payment of such sum of money as to the judge shall seem reasonable and sufficient to compensate such witness for the costs and charges incurred by him in his attendance as such witness; such sum not to exceed the amount then payable to the like witnesses in civil cases in the Superior Courts; and no allowance is to be made to any witness who resides in the county town where the offence is tried, or within one mile thereof, except in the case of medical or indigent witnesses. Where no indictment has been prepared, or where the trial has not been proceeded with, the Court may still order any person who has attended in obedience to a recognizance to be paid as though they had actually been called upon to give evidence. The order of the Court in any case is not to be made except on a certificate of the counsel acting for the Crown and the County Attorney. The order is to be paid forthwith by the Treasurer for the county, and one-third of the amount so paid is to be reimbursed to the municipality, from the Consolidated Revenue fund.

THE STANDING ARMIES OF THE WORLD.

Just think of it! Three millions of men, or about three-quarters the population of Canada are maintained in the various standing armies of the civilized nations of the world. All these are snatched away from useful industries, and condemned to idleness and a vicious life, while the laboring people are taxed for their support and for the costly armaments they require. The annual amount of military and naval budgets of Europe is $596,963,300; the loss of labor involved by the withdrawal of so many men from productive industry costs $660,874,460; and the interest of capital invested in military and naval establishments amounts to $152,200,000. This makes a total of more than $1,400,000,000 taken every year from the people of Christendom for the maintenance of military establishments. But this is not all; for nearly as many more men are required to wait upon them in some form or other, and they, too, become consumers of the world's supply of food. The first effect of this is that the finances of nearly all European States are embarrassed. On the other hand, let us for a moment suppose that, by an understanding with the great powers, a disarming in the proportion of one-half was effected. Immediately more than 2,500,000 upon the time will not be for distant when the Fisheries of the Bay of Quinte will stand among the first in commercial value in Ontario.

The doubtful problem of breeding fish, which existed for a time has been finally solved by practical demonstrations in this as well as other counties—and the beneficial result is now made manifest by the large quantity of salmon seen in the Trent, passing up the Government slide at Chisholm's Rapids during the past year, which is the growth of the salmon fry put in the river by Samuel Wilmot, overseer of the fish-breeding establishment at Newcastle, Ont. The same encouraging demonstration in other rivers where the fry has been put is becoming more and more manifest.

The yield of fish prepared for commercial sale in Ontario during the past year, as per return made, is—

NEARLY A MURDER.

A Kingston report gives the following particulars of a shooting affair: W. J. McGinn, a young baker, who had to leave his home in consequence of the drunkenness and disagreeableness of his step-father, John McGinn, hearing that his mother was being abused and the family starved, bought a pistol about eleven a. m. and went down to the house. While he was there his step-father came in and ordered him out, calling him bad names. Young McGinn then carried out his purpose of revenge by firing twice at the elder, who rushed out of the house and fell on the street. One ball entered behind the ear and came out near the nose. He bled so profusely that it was thought he was fatally shot, but the doctors say no vital spot has been touched. The affair created great commotion on the public street, being opposite the barracks. The assailant walked at once to the police station and gave himself up. He has borne the name of being quiet and orderly, and the only known motive for the crime is his affection for his mother and the desire to protect her. He is quite cool and feels as if he had done an unpleasant duty forced upon him. The Whig states that the same afternoon the man so far recovered as to chase a step-daughter around the room.

ASEA-SERPENT CONFLICT WITH A WHALE.

The Zanzibar correspondent of the Western Morning News, writing under date Oct. 20, says: "The bark Pauline has arrived at Zanzibar, with coals for Her Majesty's ships. The noise could be distinctly heard on board, and after battling for some time both disappeared. The serpent's length can be imagined. It had two coils around a full-sized sperm whale, with thirty feet clear at each end. Its diameter was from three to four feet. They saw it twice afterward. Once it came very close to the vessel, and raised itself about sixty feet out of the water, as if about to attack them. I have questioned men and officers, trying to find out any discrepancy between their statements, but am a convert to the belief that it was seen." Another naval officer writes to the Western Morning News to precisely the same effect; and the officers of Her Majesty's ships on the station are said to be convinced of the truth of the story.—Liverpool Courier.

An explosion of dynamite occurred recently at Llanbedry Quarry in Wales. Two men named William Morgan and Even Williams went to the smithy where Owen Williams, a blacksmith, and his son were at work. They incautiously placed six dynamite cartridges in a shovel over the fire, instead of putting them in warm water, to prepare them for use. On the cartridges being stirred with a brick a terrible explosion occurred. Morgan's hand was blown off, and the blacksmith's son lost an arm. The blacksmith was blinded. Morgan died next day.

HINTS ABOUT WORK.

An account should be opened with every field upon the farm, and with every kind of stock kept, commencing with the first of the year. Each field should be numbered or named, and whatever labor, seed or manure goes into or upon that field should be charged a fair price, just as if it were sold to a neighbor. When the crop is sold or used, the proceeds should be credited to the field just as if it had been received in payment from a neighbor. If some of it be fed to stock, the stock should be charged with full value, as it had been bought for them, and credited for the amount. To commence the accounts an inventory should be made, and the value of everything fairly estimated and put down. If any work has been done upon the field, and should be charged to it. It may not be very easy at first, but very soon will be, and when once it has been begun it will be kept up. Do not mind some mistakes at first.

Stock should be well fed at this season. Do not spare feed, but do not waste any. It is easier to keep flesh on an animal now than to put it on in March.

Perfect cleanliness should be the rule in all stables, pens and sheds. Filth is the most frequent cause of disease. To much warmth is not healthful. Pure air, dry beds and clean skins, will keep well fed animals in sleek condition.

Icy paths and roads are dangerous for men and beast. After every fall of snow the roads should be broken down with a snow plow or a snow boat, and the paths shoveled out or packed down on a similar manner. A heavy plank drawn along the path will clear off or pack down the snow. Coal ashes or sand are the best materials to scatter upon roads and paths when they become smooth and slippery.

Work horses should be either sharpshod or protected in some other secure manner against slipping on icy roads. Sharp calks are dangerous, and many horses are badly blemished by them. The rubber overshoe is an excellent device. It is an effective prevention against falling or slipping. We do not advise the use of shoes with calks.

flame to pass down the wick and explode the lamp.

1. A lamp may be standing on a table or mantel, and a slight puff of air from the open window, or the sudden opening of a door cause an explosion.

2. A lamp may be taken up quickly from a table or mantel and instantly explode.

3. A lamp is taken into an entry where there is a draft, or out of doors, and an explosion ensues.

4. A lighted lamp is taking up a flight of stairs, or is raised quickly to place it on the mantel, resulting in an explosion. In all these cases the mischief is done by the air movement—either by suddenly checking the draft, or forcing air down the chimney against the flame.

5. Blowing down the chimney to extinguish the light is a frequent cause of explosion.

6. Lamp explosions have been caused by the using a chimney broken off at the top, or one that has a piece broken out, whereby the drafts is variable and the flame unsteady.

7. Sometimes a thoughtless person puts a small-sized wick in a larger burner, thus leaving considerable space along the edges of the wick.

8. An old burner, with its air-draughts clogged up, which rightfully should be thrown away, is sometimes continued in use, and the final result is an explosion.—Sci. American.

A GRATE FOR WOOD FIRES.

Insert a broad, strong iron bar securely from side to side of the fireplace, and directly in front, about six inches above the hearth. From this bar let others of like diameter, and about four or five inches apart, extend at right angles to the back of the fireplace, where they must be fastened in the wall, or to a transverse bar or secured properly upon bricks. No andirons are needed with a grate of this kind; the wood burns well, and the ashes fall down and are easily removed. If a second bar is fixed a few inches above the large front bar the danger of the wood rolling forward and out of the fireplace will be averted.—Scribner.

In-coming cows should be well cared for. Some linseed cake, meal or bran in their feed will do no harm, but more exciting food should be avoided. A roomy stall or loose box should be provided in which the cow may remain at night without being tied. Milking cows will be benefited by a pailful of milk-warm water with two quarts of bran or middlings stirred in twice a day. Cold water for milking will greatly reduce the quantity of milk.

Young stock will need close attention to keep thriving and free from vermin. A mixture of lard and kerosene oil rubbed along the backbone from head to tail will free them from lice. Young animals need better protection from the cold than full grown ones, which have thicker hides, and are better furnished with fat as a protection from the cold.

Sheep should have plenty of exercise and fresh air. Above all things they should not be allowed to lie upon warm manure piles, which they will do if permitted. A pailful of boiling water should be put in the trough to take the chill off from the water. This is especially useful in colds for lamb ewes to which a chill from drinking ice water may be hurtful. Where they are yarded they should be kept dry. Dry feet are never troubled with the foot-rot.

This is the best season to repair and paint wagons, carts and implements. Everything of the kind should be put in the best order for future use.

A WARM BED FOR PIGS.

To make a hog profitable, you should not let him ever see a winter; and we think we have satisfied ourselves that spring pigs, well kept and nursed, is far less expensive, and yield more in return for their keep, than those which are fifteen or eighteen months old. Every observant farmer knows that if his cattle are not sheltered from cold weather and storms, they will require much more food to keep them in tolerable order than if they are kept warm and comfortable. Just so it is with pigs. If they are suffered to run over your premises in the snow and sleet, without a warm and dry bed of clean straw to resort to when they choose, they will not only, in all probability, come out with mange in the spring, but every grunt they give will convince you that all food they have devoured has been thrown away: for shoats that have a cold, damp, uncomfortable bed, will get mangy, and mangy pigs cannot grow. Let any one who has a mind to try the experiment, take two pigs of the same litter, suffering the one to run as above, and let the other be well-fed and well-housed, and it will be found that the superior growth of the latter will pay for the care bestowed on him with good interest. Hogs that are confined, and cannot get to the earth, will frequently be benefited by having a little charcoal, soft brick-bats, or soft rotten wood thrown into them; and a trifling quantity of brimstone, mixed in their food occasionally is an excellent thing.

Young animals need better protection from the cold than full grown ones, which have thicker hides, and are better furnished with fat as a protection from the cold.

Sheep should have plenty of exercise and fresh air. Above all things they should not be allowed to lie upon warm manure piles, which they will do if permitted. A pailful of boiling water should be put in the trough to take the chill off from the water. This is especially useful in colds for lamb ewes to which a chill from drinking ice water may be hurtful. Where they are yarded they should be kept dry. Dry feet are never troubled with the foot-rot.

This is the best season to repair and paint wagons, carts and implements. Everything of the kind should be put in the best order for future use.

WHY AND WHEN LAMPS EXPLODE.

All explosions of coal-oil lamps are caused by the vapour or gas that collects in the space above the oil. When full of oil, of course a lamp contains no gas, but immediately on lighting the lamps consumption of oil begins, soon leaving a space for gas, which commences to form as lamp warms up, and after burning a short time sufficient gas will accumulate to form an explosion. The gas in a lamp will explode only when ignited. In this respect it is like gunpowder. Cheap or inferior oil is always the most dangerous.

The flame is communicated to the gas in the following manner:—The wick tube in all lamp burners is made larger than the wick which is to pass through it. It would not do to have the wick work tightly in the burner; on the contrary, it is essential that it move up and down with perfect ease. In this way it is unavoidable that space in the tube is left along the sides of the wick sufficient for the flame from the burner to pass down into the lamp and explode the gas.

Many things may occur to cause the tolerable order than if they are kept warm and comfortable. Just so it is with pigs. If they are suffered to run over your premises in the snow and sleet, without a warm and dry bed of clean straw to resort to when they choose, they will not only, in all probability, come out with mange in the spring, but every grunt they give will convince you that all food they have devoured has been thrown away: for shoats that have a cold, damp, uncomfortable bed, will get mangy, and mangy pigs cannot grow. Let any one who has a mind to try the experiment, take two pigs of the same litter, suffering the one to run as above, and let the other be well-fed and well-housed, and it will be found that the superior growth of the latter will pay for the care bestowed on him with good interest. Pigs that are confined, and cannot get to the earth, will frequently be benefited by having a little charcoal, soft brick-bats, or soft rotten wood thrown into them; and a trifling quantity of brimstone, mixed in their food occasionally is an excellent thing.

Scene at a Brooklyn wedding breakfast. Company all seated about the table. A pause in the general conversation. Happy husband, to his wife's seven-year-old sister at the other end of the room: "Well, Julie, you have a new brother now." Julie: "Yes, but mother said to papa the other day that she is afraid that you would never amount to much, but that it seemed to be Sarah's last chance." Intense silence for a moment, followed by a rapid play of knives and forks.

WORTH $10 TO ANY FARMER.

Take one part (by weight) resin, one part beeswax, and four parts good fresh or sound lard. Mix and melt well together over a slow fire, so as to be sure not burn the mixture. It makes an ointment that is superior to anything that I have seen tried for the flesh of either horses or cattle, for fresh or old sores, and especially good to remove old, dry scabs. It softens the scab, and it comes off, leaving the skin soft and tough.

The mixture is the best thing I ever used for boots or shoes for out-door wear, as it makes spongy leather waterproof, and hard leather soft—S. D., in Southern Cultivator."

FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

A question of more than usual political interest came up in the Ontario Legislature, and we regret that it did not receive more attention of the House, as few questions are of more political importance to the future well-being of the country. It involved the principle of Female Suffrage. Mr. Creighton introduced a Bill providing that females should be allowed to vote in reference to municipal affairs. He made a vigorous speech in its favor, and a vote was at once taken without farther debate. Only 64 members were present, and of these 31 votes in favor of the Bill.

We have no hesitation in expressing our full sympathy and support in favor of the right of female suffrage, to its full extent. We see no reason whatever why females should not be allowed to vote on exactly the same conditions as the men. They are amendable to the same laws, and have therefore an equal interest in electing the law makers. The principle of excluding females from any right of political suffrage is a relic of other ages and countries, and to our mind, it is high time that it was abandoned. It may do for countries where women are looked upon and treated as a lower order of creation than men, but in our own land, where females have the right of holding property, and of engaging in business pursuits on her own account it is quite another thing. The argument that women does not possess sufficient intelligence to have access to the ballot box is now seldom used, for few entertain

C. M. MISSIONARY ANNIVERSARY.

The Missionary anniversary in connection with the C. Methodist Church of Napanee, was held this week. On Sunday, morning and evening, the pulpit was occupied by Rev. T. W. Jeffrey, of Toronto. He is an old and popular favorite in Napanee, and, as was expected, the church was filled at both services.

On Monday evening the public meeting was held, and there was again a large audience. Charles James, Esq., occupied the chair. Extracts from the Annual Report of the general Society were read by Mr. C. F. Hall, the Secretary of the Napanee Committee. This Society is now the largest by far of the Missionary Societies in Canada. To give some idea of its extent we publish the following table in reference to its general work in detail:—

Mr. C. W. Huffman in the chair.

The Council resumed.

The Chairman reported that the first clause of the by-law had been lost in Committee, and upon motion to receive the report, it was moved in amendment by Mr. Storr, seconded by Mr. J. C. Huffman, that the report be not now received, but that the by-law be recommitted to a Committee of the Whole for a second reading, upon which the yeas and nays were taken as follows:

YEAS.—Messrs. J. W. Bell, Ham, J. C. Huffman, Lane, Madden, P. H. Miller, Purdy, Storr and Wilson—9.

The amendment was lost.

Mr. Spafford, according to notice, introduced a by-law for amending by-law No. 31, which was read and referred to a Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Dollar in the chair.

The Council resumed and the Chairman reported and asked leave to sit again this afternoon. Leave granted.

The Council adjourned until 2 p. m.

At 2 p. m. the Council resumed.

Upon motion of Mr. Storr, seconded by Mr. Spafford, the By-law to amend by-law No. 31 was recommitted.

Mr. Dollar in the chair.

The Council resumed.

The Chairman reported that the by-law had been negatived in Committee, and on motion of Mr. Joyner, seconded by Mr. McDonald, the report was received and adopted.

A communication from C. Aishton, with reference to purchasing a Washing Machine for use at the Gaol, was read, and the matter referred to the Committee on County Property.

On motion of Mr. J. W. Bell, seconded by Mr. Storr, the by-law respecting planting trees along the County Roads was referred to Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Storr in the Chair.

The Council resumed.

The Chairman reported that the by-law had been negatived in Committee, the report was received and adopted.

Moved by Mr. W. A. Bell, seconded by Mr. Paul, that A. K. Aylesworth, Esq., M. D., be appointed Trustee of the Newburgh High School.—Carried.

Upon motion of Mr. J. W. Bell, seconded by Mr. Dollar, the Treasurer was requested to lay before the Council at the present session a statement of the amounts due, if any, by the different municipali-

Bill.

We have no hesitation in expressing our full sympathy and support in favor of the right of female suffrage, to its full extent. We see no reason whatever why females should not be allowed to vote on exactly the same conditions as the men. They are amendable to the same laws, and have therefore an equal interest in electing the law makers. The principle of excluding females from any right of political suffrage is a relic of other ages and countries, and to our mind, it is high time that it was abandoned. It may do for countries where women are looked upon and treated as a lower order of creation than men, but in our own land, where females have the right of holding property, and of engaging in business pursuits on her own account it is quite another thing. The argument that women does not possess sufficient intelligence to have access to the ballot box is now seldom used, for few entertain such an idea. We have too many evidences to the contrary all around us. Among the most successful authors, editors, and teachers of our day stand many females, and should these be deprived of the rights of voting accorded to thousands of men, by no means their equal in education, intelligence, or intellectual force? We cannot understand any process of reasoning by which such a conclusion may be reached.

In the British nation a woman is deemed fit and competent to occupy the highest position in the realm, why should she be deemed unfit for one of so much less importance? If a woman is not excluded from the Throne why should she be excluded from the Ballot box?

The existing anomaly has too long continued, and we trust that many years will not pass until the unreasonable distinction has been abolished.

We write earnestly on this subject because of the conviction that our present system is being perpetrated much to the injury of the country. We have no doubt but that the politics of the country would be much elevated and purified by giving the women the right to vote. Many a man who has been elected through the influence of whiskey and the rowdy element in society, would be then left at home; many practices that now prevail in elections would be at once abandoned. Instead of the franchise degrading woman, as some like to assert, we fully believe that the presence and influence of women would do much in elevating political issues, and making them more in accordance with the intellectual force? We cannot understand any process of reasoning by which such a conclusion may be reached.

In the British nation a woman is deemed fit and competent to occupy the highest position in the realm, why should she be deemed unfit for one of so much less importance? If a woman is not excluded from the Throne why should she be excluded from the Ballot box?

The existing anomaly has too long continued, and we trust that many years will not pass until the unreasonable distinction has been abolished.

We have no doubt but that the politics of the country would be much elevated and purified by giving the women the right to vote. Instead of the franchise degrading woman, as some like to assert, we fully believe that the presence and influence of women would do much in elevating political issues, and making them form more in accord with civilization of our times than they often now are.

Many stand aloof from this question because they fear it is not "popular," and prefer to "pooch, pooch" at it than to meet it on its actual issues. Those favoring female suffrage, however, stand side by side with such men as the present Premier of England and four of his leading colleagues, who last year voted in its favor in the Imperial Parliament. It is known, too, that the late John Stuart Mill, one of the master minds of this century, was simply in its favor, and wrote a book on the subject. We look upon it as one of the leading political issues of the future. It is a measure of reform, and it surprises us to notice that a number of the most prominent members of the Reform party in this Province have recorded their votes against it. Either they must cease to count themselves as reformers or the party must re-organize unless they change their position.

As a matter of curiosity we publish the list of yeas and nays in the House in this question. It will be seen that Mr. Grange favored the Bill, while Mr. Deroche voted in opposition.

The amount raised by the subscriptions and the Sunday collections was $469, being an advance on the proceeds of last year's meeting. This amount will be increased when the collectors do their work, as several large contributors were absent.

such a conclusion may be reached.

In the British nation a woman is deemed fit and competent to occupy the highest position in the realm, why should she be deemed unfit for one of so much less importance? If a woman is not excluded from the Throne why should she be excluded from the Ballot box?

We write earnestly on this subject because of the conviction that our present system is being perpetrated much to the injury of the country. We have no doubt but that the politics of the country would be much elevated and purified by giving the women the right to vote. Many a man who has been elected through the influence of whiskey and the rowdy element in society, would be then left at home; many practices that now prevail in elections would be at once abandoned. Instead of the franchise degrading woman, as some like to assert, we fully believe that the presence and influence of women would do much in elevating political issues, and making them form more in accord with civilization of our times than they often now are.

Many stand aloof from this question because they fear it is not "popular," and prefer to "pooch, pooch" at it than to meet it on its actual issues. Those favoring female suffrage, however, stand side by side with such men as the present Premier of England and four of his leading colleagues, who last year voted in its favor in the Imperial Parliament. It is known, too, that the late John Stuart Mill, one of the master minds of this century, was simply in its favor, and wrote a book on the subject. We look upon it as one of the leading political issues of the future. It is a measure of reform, and it surprises us to notice that a number of the most prominent members of the Reform party in this Province have recorded their votes against it. Either they must cease to count themselves as reformers or the party must re-organize unless they change their position.

As a matter of curiosity we publish the list of yeas and nays in the House in this question. It will be seen that Mr. Grange favored the Bill, will Mr. DeRoche vote in opposition

Last year about $500 was contributed by the congregation at Napanee.

The meeting was addressed by Rev. T. W. Jeffrev, of Toronto, and Rev. James Elliott, of Kingston, the President of the Montreal Conference. Both spoke eloquently in reference to the claims of the Mission work, but failed to give much information in reference to the work now being carried on through the agency of the Missionaries employed by the Society. They were listened to with great interest by all present. On motion of Rev. Mr. Blackstock, a Missionary Committee for Napanee was appointed; and lady collectors were also named, but we have not been supplied with the names.

The Choir, as usual, did excellent service. The usual votes of thanks were tendered, and the meeting closed about 10 o'clock. The amount raised by the subscriptions and the Sunday collections was $469, being an advance on the proceeds of last year's meeting. This amount will be increased when the collectors do their work, as several large contributors were absent.

One of the most shocking results of strong drink that has occurred in our midst for some time was Thursday evening last when Mr John Kelley, a well to do farmer about eight miles from here, in Tyendinaga, was burned to death in his own dwelling. From the best information we can obtain it seems the unfortunate man had been drinking to excess during the day, and in his frenzy he had driven his wife and family away from the house. They had taken refuge with a neighbor. When last seen he was lying on a bed adjoining the kitchen and a light burning near him. About 8 o'clock it was discovered that the house was in flames, and when it was reached it was impossible to do anything to save the unfortunate inmate, who had probably, before that time been smothered in the in the flame and smoke. In consequence of the great heat nothing could be done until the following morning. The unfortunate man was almost totally consumed, but little remaning but a few bones, and the heart. We understand that all that could be gathered was at the time placed in a half bushel.

On Sunday a very large procession of the neighbours followed the remains to Napanee, where funeral services were performed in the church of England, and there mains buried in the Cemetery here.

Mr Kelley was a man between 60 and 70 years of age. He leaves a wife and two sons who are married.

DEAD HORSE.—Tuesday a horse belonging to a span of Mr. Wilder Joy of this town dropped dead while drawing wood.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.—At the meeting of the board of School Trustees last evening, James Perry, Esq., was elected Chairman for this year.

REMINDERS.—The anniversary services of the M. E. Church, Hamburg, on Sunday next. Sermons morning, afternoon, and evening. The annual tea-meeting on Monday evening.

The anniversary of the M. E. Church, Selby, on Sunday and Monday evening 13th and 14th.

DON'T FORGET.—To go and see and hear Bengough (Grip) next Wednesday evening at the Town Hall. The Toronto and other leading papers speak in the highest terms of this new lecture.

Remember the regular Sunday Temperance meeting in the Town Hall on Sunday next, commencing at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Workingman's Association. A full house is expected.

THE NEW LICENSE BILL.—The Government License Bill passed a second reading in the House this week without any amendment or a division of the House. It will doubtless become law and go into effect at once.

THE RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—The general annual meeting of the County Rifle Association will be held at Odessa Drill shed on Monday next at 6 o'clock for the election of officers. Those interested will please take note.

AT WILTON.—A public temperance meeting under the auspices of the Good Templars of Wilton is to be held in that village on Tuesday evening next. Messrs. Jas Allen and T. W. Casey, of Napanee, are expected among the speakers.

THE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION MEETING.—The Teachers Association Meeting of the Lennox & Addington Teachers Association will be held at the High RECOVERING.—Our much respected friend Mr. Councillor Spencer has been ill for some time, and for a week or two has been confined to his house. We are glad to learn that he is so far recovering as to be able to visit his shop again. Few faces are more familiar to all doing business in the town than that of Henry Spencer, Esq., of the enterprising firm of Spencer & Hogan.

GRIP COMING.—Bengough, the celebrated cartoonist of Grip, has arranged to give his celebrated lecture entitled "Heads and Tails," in the Town Hall, Napanee, on Wednesday evening next, 9th inst. As a caricaturist, probably he has no equal in Canada, and his lectures are most entertaining and enjoyable. A rich treat is in store for those who will attend. Remember the time and place.

MORE DUNKIN.—We understand that it is the purpose of the temperance men of the Township of Camden to carry a Dunkin By-Law for that municipality if possible. A convention was held last week and it was resolved to circulate the necessary requisitions, and have them presented at the next meeting of the Township Council, asking for such a by-law to be submitted to the electors as soon as practicable.

GREAT CLEARING SALES.—The great clearing sales, in order to make way for the spring trade, are now the order of the day, among our Napanee merchants. It will be seen by the large advertisement of Messrs. Rose & Fralick that they have put in an oar also, and are determined to sell if low prices can induce people to buy. If any one is skeptical in regard to this being a real sale they can be convinced by calling and inspecting for themselves.

MOLLOY'S SENSATION.—Thomas Molloy well knows how to attract public attention, and no wonder, therefore, that so many throng his store. For the past two Saturdays he has had a procession of boys, grotesquely dressed, parading the streets with bells and streamers, announcing his great clearing sale, and they have caused no little sensation. The last time they passed our window, two policemen had joined the procession.

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT.—The Dominion Parliament will be convened at Ottawa on Thursday of next week,

FROM MORVEN.

All aboard for the M. E. Church, Anderson's neighborhood. Rev. F. B. Stratton announced here last night that two teams were engaged to take his large band of singers to the "Big Festival," to be held in the above church, on Friday, 14th inst., at 6:30 P. M.

A grand time is promised. It will surely be worth more than 20 cents, Singing, Speaking, Eating and all; so we better all go. It is pleasing to find a public man taking such a deep interest in the welfare of the youth. Let us encourage him.

The Juvenile Concert, and lecture of Bishop Carman, M. A. D. D., here, are postponed until the 15th inst. More particulars next week.

Twenty suits, of Fine Clothing made to order will be sold at less than cost price at Slaven & Ironsides.

All parties indebted to Slaven & Ironsides will find it to their advantage to pay their accounts before the end of the month.

AROUND HOME.

An act has passed its third reading in the Ottawa Legislature, incorporating the Belleville Street Railway Company.

NEW FERRY BOAT.—The Kingston Whig says: "A new boat is now being built at Picton by the Messrs. McMurchy Brothers of that town for the Bay of Quinte trade. The contract is given to Mr. Brokenshire, of the Atlantic Foundry of this city, for the erection of the engine and boiler. The cylinder is to be 16 x 18, and everything in connection is to be done in a first-class manner.

The Picton Gazette says: We have to congratulate Wm. R. Dempsey, Esq., upon his elevation to the Warden's chair—a position which we feel convinced that he will fill with credit to himself and advantage to the County. The extensive repairs required on the jail, the High School question, and other important matters will come up and have to be disposed of, and we feel convinced that the Council of 1876 will show a record that will redound to their credit.

M. Bowell, Esq., of Belleville, has been elected by the Fourth Agricultural Division a member of the Board of Agricultural and Arts Association for the ensuing three years. The Fourth

AT WILTON.—A public temperance meeting under the auspices of the Good Templars of Wilton is to be held in that village on Tuesday evening next. Messrs. Jas Allen and T. W. Casey, of Napanee, are expected among the speakers.

THE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION MEETING—The Teachers Association will be held at the High School, Napanee, on Saturday 12th inst. The election of officers for the year will take place, and an interesting programme of exercises may be expected.

THE LICENSE BY-LAW.—The by-law raising the rate of Tavern and Shop licenses in Napanee to $300 per year is now fairly before the people, and Monday, 14th inst., has been appointed for the day when a vote of the election shall be taken. Next week we intend to make some fuller comments respecting it.

MRS. YOUMANS.—We are glad to be able to announce that Mrs. Youmans, of Picton, so widely known over the Province as an earnest and eloquent temperance worker, will address a mass meeting in Napanee in the Methodist Church on Tuesday evening next. We hope to see a very full house that night.

ATTEMPTED THEFT AT ODESSA.—The Standard learns that some thief attempted to gain admittance in the Odessa Post Office through the window on Saturday night. He was heard by Mr. Timmerman, who fired a pistol shot after him, which missed its aim and lodged in the shutter. He will now probably turn his attention to some place where less vigilance is observed.

KENNEDY IS COMING.—Kennedy the great Scottish vocalist is billed to give a concert in the Music Hall, Napanee, on Monday evening 14th inst. He always draws a good house, and has the best success where known. The very name of Kennedy has become suggestive of something unusually good in the way of Scotch song. This time his programme is unusually attractive.

WORKINGMAN'S TEMPERANCE MEETING.—In the early stages of the Washingtonian Temperance Society it is said that one great reason of its success was that men just reformed took the stand and spoke to men needing reformation, in a language both well understood. The Workingman's Temperance Society of Napanee resolved to try a similar experiment, and last evening held a public meeting in the parading the streets with bells and streamers, announcing his great clearing sale, and they have caused no little sensation. The last time they passed our window, two policemen had joined the procession.

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT.—The Dominion Parliament will be convened at Ottawa on Thursday of next week, 10th inst. The session will probably be one of a good deal of interest, though from a mere party point of view little interest will be attached, from the fact that there seems no probability whatever of anything like a political crisis or party changes during the session. We intend giving full summary reports of the proceedings in the EXPRESS.

JUVENILE TEMPLARS.—We are glad to know that the Juvenile Templars have been reorganized again in Napanee, under the efficient management of Mr. Henry Frahm. The object of the organization is to pledge all children under 14 years against the use of alcohol and tobacco—a most worthy object. A meeting will be held on Friday evening in the Good Templars Hall, over Henderson's bookstore to select the officers.

COUNTY ORANGE LODGE LENNOX AND ADDINGTON.—At the County Orange Lodge held at the Orange Hall, Tamworth, the following Brethren were elected officers for the current year: Bro. Alex. Henry, C. M.; Bro. Robt. Cox, D. M.; Bro. D. Henwood, Treas.; Bro. Ed. Ring, Sec.; Bro. Clark, Chap, Bro. Ed. Roberts, County D of C. The next annual meeting will be held at Centerville on the 1st Tuesday in February, 1877.

ON THE WAR-PATH.—We are glad to learn from the Brockville Recorder that our friend, Rev. S. G. White, formerly of Odessa, is at it again—at the Temperance work in his usually vigorous and effective style. He lectured in Delta, Leeds Co., a few evenings ago, and is announced for a number of other places in the county. The Recorder says: "Mr. White has the power of fascinating his audience, in other words he is a natural orator, and his mind is thoroughly stored with facts in connection with the subject. We would strongly advise all the friends to make a point to hear him."

HORSE DROWNED.—On Saturday evening last a man by the name of McLaughlin, a tavern keeper near Newboro, left Westport in company with another man for his home, and other important matters will come up and have to be disposed of, and we feel convinced that the Council of 1876 will show a record that will redound to their credit.

M. Bowell, Esq., of Belleville, has been elected by the Fourth Agricultural Division a member of the Board of Agricultural and Arts Association for the ensuing three years. The Fourth Division comprises East, West and North Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox.

The Grand Trunk viaduct at Port Hope, over which trains have been for some time run at "slow" is undergoing repairs.

John Wood, lately of Newburg, has succeeded in establishing a claim against a railroad company at Detroit for $5,307, for the loss of his son and his wife, who were both killed by being run over a year ago.

PRINCE EDWARD TRIAL.—The trial of the protest of the election of G. Striker, M. P. P., is put down for February 8th. Some are saying that he will be unseated.

A SUICIDE.—On Saturday 22nd ult., a skeleton was found on the Sand Banks near Picton. A Coroner's inquest was held by Dr. Platt, and the evidence goes to show that the remains are probably those of a young man named John Finnigan, who disappeared about sixteen months ago, and had not since been heard of. There was a bullet in the skull and a revolver under the body, indicating suicide. He showed signs of insanity before his disappearance.

The Hon. C. Fraser, of the Ontario Government, is announced to lecture in Kingston under the auspices of the St. Vincent De Paul Society.

THE ROYAL COMMISSION.—The financial affairs of Belleville have become so muddled that a Government Commission was asked for to investigate them, and to report on whom lies the blame of a deficit of some thousands of dollars. We are glad to learn that A. L. Morden, Esq., of Napanee, and J. McGibbon of Lindsay, are appointed.

SALT WATER.—The Milford correspondent of the Picton New Nation relates: Mr. Jackson, of Point Traverse, while boring for water on the farm of Richard Wattam, struck a vein of salt water. He had reached the depth of 65 feet when the water rose nearly to the surface. On separating the salt from the water it contained one pound

MRS. YOUNG — We are glad to be able to announce that Mrs. Young, of Picton, so widely known over the Province as an earnest and eloquent temperance worker, will address a mass meeting in Napanee in the Methodist Church on Tuesday evening next. We hope to see a very full house that night.

ATTEMPTED THEFT AT ODESSA.—The Standard learns that some thief attempted to gain admittance in the Odessa Post Office through the window on Saturday night. He was heard by Mr. Timmerman, who fired a pistol shot after him, which missed its aim and lodged in the shutter. He will now probably turn his attention to some place where less vigilance is observed.

KENNEDY IS COMING.—Kennedy the great Scottish vocalist is billed to give a concert in the Music Hall, Napanee, on Monday evening 14th inst. He always draws a good house, and has the best success where known. The very name of Kennedy has become suggestive of something unusually good in the way of Scotch song. This time his programme is unusually attractive.

WORKINGMAN'S TEMPERANCE MEETING.—In the early stages of the Washingtonian Temperance Society it is said that one great reason of its success was that men just reformed took the stand and spoke to men needing reformation, in a language both well understood. The Workingman's Temperance Society of Napanee resolved to try a similar experiment, and last evening held a public meeting in the Town Hall, addressed by working men of their own Association, whose personal experience, it was supposed, would be of profit to others. The Town Hall was crowded with men. James Allen, Esq., presided, and Messrs. Saunders, Moss and Schryver were the speakers. As it was their maiden efforts, a good deal of merriment was created at the somewhat amusing way in which some questions were handled. They made the mistake of attempting to grapple with the most important political problems of the question, which are subjects of anxious study by the ablest of men, instead of giving their own personal experience of the advantages of total abstinence.

under the efficient management of Mr. Henry Fralek. The object of the organization is to pledge all children under 14 years against the use of alcohol and tobacco—a most worthy object. A meeting will be held on Friday evening in the Good Templars Hall, over Henderson's bookstore to select the officers.

COUNTY ORANGE LODGE LENNOX AND ADDINGTON.—At the County Orange Lodge held at the Orange Hall, Tamworth, the following Brethren were elected officers for the current year: Bro. Alex. Henry, C. M.; Bro. Robt. Cox, D. M.; Bro. D. Henwood, Treas.; Bro. Ed. Ring, Sec.; Bro. —Clark, Chap. Bro. Ed. Roberts, County D of C. The next annual meeting will be held at Centerville on the 1st Tuesday in February, 1877.

We would strongly advise all the friends to make a point to hear him."

HORSE DROWNED.—On Saturday evening last a man by the name of McLaughlin, a tavern keeper near Newboro, left Westport in company with another man for his home, and sleighing not being first-rate, took the ice on the canal. Being somewhat under the influence of liquor he got off the road, and in a very short time was precipitated into the water. He swam around in the water and did all he could to save the horse, and finally he got out and both he and his friend ran to the nearest farm houses for assistance. The night being a very dark one, and a piercing wind prevailing at the time, his clothes were frozen stiff, and he himself was in a very bad state. On going back to the spot after assistance had been received, the horse and cutter had disappeared under the ice. Next morning the cutter was got out, but robes etc., were gone. The horse and robes were valued at $200.

wife, who were both killed by being run over a year ago.

PRINCE EDWARD TRIAL.—The trial of the protest of the election of G. Striker, M. P. P., is put down for February 8th. Some are saying that he will be unseated.

We are glad to learn that A. L. Morden, Esq., of Napanee, and J. McGibbon of Lindsay, are appointed.

SALT WATER.—The Milford correspondent of the Picton New Nation relates: Mr. Jackson, of Point Traverse, while boring for water on the farm of Richard Wattam, struck a vein of salt water. He had reached the depth of 63 feet when the water rose nearly to the surface. On separating the salt from the water it contained one pound of salt to eleven pounds of water.

RATHBUN'S MILLS.—It has been understood for some time that the Messrs. Rathbun intend closing up their large lumbering establishment at Belleville, and transferring the business to Mill Point. They have been induced to propose to Belleville to continue there 8 years still, providing they can have the Island rent and tax free, and receive about $1,500 per year, and to give up all the improvements to the town at the expiration of the time. The proposal is being considered. The removal would be a serious loss to Belleville.

UNLIMITED REMEDIAL RESOURCES.

People sometimes suppose that Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines represent the entire extent of his resources for curing disease. This is an error. Experience proved that while the Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription, Pleasant Purgative Pellets, Compound Extract of Smart-Weed, and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, would, if faithfully used, cure a large variety of chronic complaints, there would be here and there a case which, from its severity, or from its complication with other disorders, would resist their action. These exceptional cases required a thorough examination into their symptoms, to ascertain the exact nature and extent of the disease or diseases under which the patient was laboring, and the use of specific remedies to meet and overcome the same. This led to the establishment of the World's Dispensary, at Buffalo, N. Y., with its Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons, each of whom is skilled in the treatment of chronic disorders in general and those belonging to his own special department in particular. To one is assigned diseases of the throat and lungs; to another, diseases of the kidneys and urogenital organs; to another, diseases of the digestive system; to another, diseases of the nervous system; and to another, diseases of the eye and ear. Thus the highest degree of perfection in the

To one is assigned diseases of the throat and lungs; to another, diseases of the kidneys and urogenital organs; to another, diseases of the digestive system; to another, diseases of the nervous system; and to another, diseases of the eye and ear. Thus the highest degree of perfection in the medicine and surgery is attained. The establishment of this institution enables the Doctor to meet a longfelt want in the treatment of the more severe chronic affections. By a careful consideration of the symptoms as given in writing, he successfully treats thousands of cases at their homes. Others visit the Dispensary in person. The amplest resources for the treatment of lingering affections are thus placed at the disposal of every patient, and those on whom the proprietary medicines do not have the desired effect can procure a more thorough and efficient course by a personal application to the proprietor of the World's Dispensary.

THE STOMACH IS THE principal portal through which disease enters the system, and it is only by the successful treatment of the derangements of this organ that we can restore health and fortify the constitution. Indigestion and malassimilation of food lead to impoverishment of the blood, imperfect nourishment of the tissues, and that condition of general debility which promotes the development of hereditary and acquired diseases. DR. WHEELER'S Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya, a nutritive tonic, maintains the digestive apparatus in a vigorous condition.

EPP'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING. —By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette.—Sold only in Packets labelled—"JAMES EPPS & Co., Homeopathic Chemists, 48, Threadneedle Street, and 160, Piccadilly London." 43

MY MOTHER.

May God in all his bounty,
Throughout the coming year,
Bestow His gifts with plenty,
On you, my mother dear.
And may each of his blessings
Be richer than the last,
And may each day seem brighter,
More joyous than the past.

And if a thought of sadness
Should cloud your dear sweet face,
May God send light and gladness
To shine there in its place.

We and Our Neighbors.

BY HARRIET BEECHER STOWE

AUTHOR OF "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."
ETC., ETC.,

Still she looked eagerly and anxiously for the return of her husband, that she might reinforce herself by talking it over with him. Here was a nature so transparent that, before he had been five minutes in the house, he felt that something had gone wrong; but, the dinner bell ringing, he retired at once to make his toilet, and did not open the subject till they were fairly seated at the table.

"Well, come now, puss—out with it! Why that anxious brow? What domestic catastrophe? Anything gone wrong with the ivies?"

"Oh, no; the ivies are all right, growing beautiful—it isn't that—"

"Well, then, what is it? It seems there is something."

"Oh, nothing, Harry; only Aunt Maria has been spending the day here."

Eva said this with such a perplexed and woful face that Harry leaned back in his chair and laughed.

"What a blessing it is to have relations," he said; "but I thought, Eva, that you had made up your mind not to care for anything Aunt Maria says."

"Well, she has been all over the house, surveying and reviewing as if she owned us, and she has lectured Mary and sent her into hysterics—" and sharp," said Eva, "and so I may as well take the advantages of my sort of nature."

"Certainly you may; people never succeed out of their own line."

"Then there's another trouble. I'm afraid Aunt Maria is going to interfere with Alice, as she tried to do with me. She said that everybody was talking about her intimacy with Jim, and that if I didn't speak to Alice she must."

"Confound that woman," said Harry; "she's an unmitigated old fool! She's as bad as a runaway steam engine; somebody ought to seize and lock her up."

"Come, sir, keep a civil tongue about my relations," said Eva, laughing.

"Well, I must give off a little to you, just to lower steam to the limits of Christian moderation."

"Alice isn't as fond of Aunt Maria as I am, and has a high spirit of her own, and I am afraid it will make a terrible scene if Aunt Maria attacks her, so I suppose I must talk to her myself; but what do you think of Jim, Harry? Is there anything in it, on his part?"

"How can I say? you know just as much as I do and no more, and you are a better judge of human nature than I am."

"Well, would you like to have Alice take Jim—supposing there were any thing."

"Why, yes, very well, if she wants him."

"But Jim is such a volatile creature—would you want to trust him?"

"He is constant in his affections, which is the main thing. I'm sure his conduct when your father failed showed that; and a sensible, dignified woman like Alice might make a man of him."

"It's odd," said Eva, "that Alice, who is so prudent, and has such a high sense of propriety, seems so very indulgent to Jim. None of his escapades seem to offend her."

"It's the doctrine of counterparts," said Harry; "the steady sensible nature admires the brilliancy and variety of the volatile one."

"For my part," said Eva, "I can't conceive of Jim's saying anything in serious earnest. The very idea of his being sentimental seems funny—and how can anybody be in love without being sentimental?"

warm corner under the gas-light, and began looking over the outside of her Parisian letters with that sort of luxurious enjoyment of delay with which he examines the post-marks and directions of letters that are valued as a great acquisition. There was one from her sister Ida, and one from Harry's cousin Caroline. Ida's was opened first. It was dated from a boarding-house in the Rue de Clichy, giving a sort of journalized view of her studies, their medical instructors, their walks and duties in the hospital, all told with an evident and vigorous sense of enjoyment. Eva felt throughout what a strong, cheerful, self-sustained being her sister was, and how fit it was that a person so sufficient to herself, so equable, so healthfully balanced and poised in all her mental and physical conformation, should have undertaken the pioneer work of opening a new profession for women. "I never could do as she does, in the world," was her mental comment, "but I am thankful that she can." And then she cut the envelope of Caroline's letter.

To a certain extent there were the same details in it—Caroline was evidently associated in the same studies, the same plans, but there was missing in the letter the professional enthusiasm, the firmness, the self-poise, and calm clearness. There were more bursts of feeling on the pictures in the Louvre than on scientific discoveries; more sensibility to the various æsthetic wonders which Paris opens to an uninitiated guest than to the treasures of anatomy and surgery. With the letters were sent two or three poems, contributions to the Magazine—poems full of color and life, of a subdued fire, but with that undertone of sadness which is so common in all female poets. A portion of the letter may explain this:

"You are right, my dear Eva, in saying, in our last interview, that it did not seem to you that I had the kind of character that was adapted to the profession I have chosen. I don't think I have. I am more certain of it from comparing myself from day to day with Ida, who certainly is born and made for it, if ever a woman was. "Oh, nothing, Harry; only Aunt Maria has been spending the day here."

Eva said this with such a perplexed and woful face that Harry leaned back in his chair and laughed.

"What a blessing it is to have relations," he said; "but I thought, Eva, that you had made up your mind not to care for anything Aunt Maria says."

"Well, she has been all over the house, surveying and reviewing as if she owned us, and she has lectured Mary and got her into hysterics, and talked to me till I am almost bewildered—wondering at everything we mean to do, and wanting us to take her ways and not ours."

"My dearest child, why need you care? Take it as a rainstorm, and when you've been caught out without your umbrella. That's all. Or why can't you simply and firmly tell her that she must not go over your house or direct your servants?"

"Well, you see, that would never do. She would feel so injured and abused. I've only just made up and brought things to going smoothly, and got her pacified about our marriage. There would be another fuss if I should talk that way. Aunt Maria always considered me her girl, and maintains that she is a sort of special guardian to me, and I think it very disagreeable to quarrel with your relations, and get on unpleasant terms with them."

"Well, I shall speak to her, Eva, pretty decidedly, if you don't."

"Oh, don't, don't, Harry! She'd never forgive you. No. Let me manage her. I have managed her all day to keep the peace, to keep her satisfied and pleased; to let her advise me to her heart's content, about things where I can take advice. Aunt Maria is a capital judge of linens and cottons and all sorts of household stuffs, and can tell to a certainty just how much of a thing you'd want, and the price you ought to pay, and the exact place to get it; and I have been contriving to get her opinion on a dozen points where I mean to take it; and I think she left, on the whole, highly satisfied with her visit, though in the main I didn't give in to her a bit about our plans."

"There are diversities of operation," said Harry. "Jim must make love in his own way, and it will probably be an original one."

"But, really now, do you know," persisted Eva, "I think Alice might be mated with a man of much higher class than Jim. He is amiable, and bright, and funny, and agreeable. Yet I don't deny but Alice might be better."

"So she might, but the perversity of fate is that the superior man isn't around, and Jim is; and, ten to one, if the superior man were in the field, Alice would be perverse enough to choose Jim. And, after all, you must confess, give Jim Fellows a fortune of a million or two, a place in Newport, and another on the North River, and even you would call it a brilliant match, and think it a fortunate thing for Alice."

"Oh, dear me, Harry, that's the truth, to be sure. Am I so worldly?"

"No; but deal heroes are not plentiful, and there are few gems that don't need rich setting. The first questions as to a man are, is he safe, has he no bad habits, is he kind and affectionate in his disposition and capable of constant affection? and, secondly, does the woman feel that sort of love that makes her prefer him even to men that are quite superior? Now, whether Alice feels in that way toward Jim is what remains to be seen. I'm sure I can't tell. Neither can I tell whether Jim has any serious intentions in regard to her. If they were only let alone, and not watched and interfered with, I've no doubt the thing would adjust itself in the natural course of things."

My choice of it has been simply and only for the reason that I must choose something as a means of self-support, and more than that, as a refuge from morbid distresses of mind which made the still monotony of my New England country life intolerable to me. This course pretended itself to me as something feasible. I thought it, too, a good and worthy career—one in which one might do one's share of good in the world. But, Eva, I can feel that there is one essential difference between Ida and myself: she is peculiarly self-sustained and sufficient to herself, and I am just the reverse. I am full of vague unrest; I am chased by seasons of high excitement, alternating with deadly languor. Ida has hard work to know what to do with me. You were right in supposing, as you intimate in your letter, that a certain common friend has something to do with this unrest, but you cannot, unless you knew my whole history, know how much. My father overwhelmed him with accusations; every baseness was laid to his charge. I was woman enough to have stood for him against the world if he had come to me. I would of left all and gone to the ends of the earth with him if he had asked me, but he did not. There was only one farewell, self-accusing letter, and even that fell into my father's hands and never came to me till after his death. For years I thought myself wantonly trifled with by a man of whose attentions I ought to be ashamed. Now there's a good deal of sense in what she said about trusting too much to servants, and being too indulgent. I know mamma's girls used to get spoiled so that they would be perfect tyrants. And yet I cannot for the life of me like Aunt Maria's hard, ungracious way of living with servants, as if they were machines."

"Ah, well, Eva, it's always so. Hard, worldly people always have a good deal of what looks like practical sense on their side, and kindness and unselfishness certainly have their weak points; there's no doubt of that. The Sermon on the Mount is open to a great deal of good hard worldly criticism, and so is every attempt to live up to it practically; but, never mind. We all know that the generous way is the strong way, and the best way, in the long run."

"Well your grave face when I first came in put everything else out of my head; and then came on all this talk; but it's just as well, you'll have them to read while I'm gone."

"Don't stay late, Harry."

"No; you may be sure I've no temptation. I'd much rather be here with you watching our own backlog. But then I shall see several fellows about articles for the magazine, and get all the late news, and, in short, take an observation of our latitude and longitude: so, au revoir!"

CHAPTER VII.

LETTERS AND AIR-CASTLES.

After Harry went out, Eva arranged the fire, dropped the curtains over the window, drew up an easy chair into a vague unrest; I am chased by seasons of high excitement, alternating with deadly languor. Ida has hard work to know what to do with me. You were right in supposing, as you intimate in your letter, that a certain common friend has something to do with this unrest, but you cannot, unless you knew my whole history, know how much. There was a time when he and I were all the world to each other—when shall I ever forget that time! I was but seventeen; a young girl, so ignorant of life! I never had seen one like him; he was a whole new revelation to me; he woke up everything there was in me, never to go to sleep again; and then to think of having all this tide and current of feeling checked—frozen. My father overwhelmed him with accusations; every baseness was laid to his charge. I was woman enough to have stood for him against the world if he had come to me. I would of left all and gone to the ends of the earth with him if he had asked me, but he did not. There was only one farewell, self-accusing letter, and even that fell into my father's hands and never came to me till after his death. For years I thought myself wantonly trifled with by a man of whose attentions I ought to be ashamed. I was indignant at myself for the love that might have been my glory, for it is my solemn belief, that if we had been let alone he would have been saved all those wretched falls, those blind struggles that have marred a life whose purpose is yet so noble.

"When the fates brought us together again in New York, I saw at a glance that whatever may have been the proud, morbid conscientiousness that dictated his long silence, he loved me still—a woman knows that by an unmistakable instinct. She can feel the reality through all disguises. I know that man loves me, and yet he does not now in word or deed make the least profession beyond the boundaries of friendship. He is my friend; with entire devotion he is willing to spend and be spent for me—but he will accept nothing from me. I, who would give my life to him willingly—must do nothing for him!

"Well, it's no use writing. You see now that I a very unworthy disciple of your sister. She is so calm and philosophical that I cannot tell her all this; but you, dear little Eva, you know the heart of woman, and you have a magic key which unlocks everybody's heart in confidence to you. I seem to see you, in fancy, with good Cousin Harry, sitting closely in your chimney-corner; your ivies and nasturtiums growing round your sunny windows, and an everlasting summer in your pretty parlors, while the December winds whistle without. Such a life as you two lead, such a house as your home, is worth a thousand 'careers' that dazzle ambition. Send us more letters, journals, of all your pretty, lovely home life, and let me warm myself in the glow of your fireside.

"Your Cousin,

CARRY."

Eva finished this letter, and folding it up sat with it in her lap, gazing into the fire, and pondering its contents. If the truth must be told, she was revolving in her young, busy brain a scheme for restoring Caroline to her lover, and setting them up comfortably at house-keeping on a contiguous street, where she had seen a house to let. In five minutes she had gone through the whole programme—seen the bride at the altar, engaged the house, bought the furniture, and had before her a vision of parlors, of snuggeries and cosy nooks, where Caroline was to preside, and where Boulton was to lounge at his ease, while she and Caroline compared house-keeping accounts. Happy young wives develop an aptitude for match-making as naturally as flowers spring in a meadow, and Eva was losing herself in this vision of Alnashar, when a loud, imperative, sharp bark of a dog at the front door of the house called her back to life and the world.

Now there are as many varieties to dog-barks as to man-talks. There is the common bow-wow, which means nothing, only that it is a dog speaking; the conversational bark, which, of a moonlight night, means gossip; and the imperative staccato bark which means immediate business. The bark at the front door was of this kind: it was loud and sharp, and with a sort of indignant imperativeness about it, as of one accustomed to be attended to immediately.

Eva flew to the front door and opened it, and there sat Jack, the spoiled darling of Miss Dorcas Vanderheyden and her sister, over the way.

"Why, Jacky! where did you come from?" said Eva. Jacky sat up on his staircase in an equal state of dishabille:

"Oh dear, Mrs. Henderson, we are so shocked!"

Dear me, never speak of it. I think it was a cunning trick of Jack. He knew you were gone to bed, and saw I was up, and so got me to ring his doorbell for him. I don't doubt he rode up town in the omnibus. Well, good-night!"

And Eva closed the door, and flew back to her own little nest just in time to let in Harry.

The first few moments after they were fairly by the fireside were devoted to a recital of the adventure, with dramatic representations of Jack and his mistresses.

"It's a capital move on Jack's part. It got me into the very interior of the fortress. Only think of seeing them in their night-caps! That is carrying all the outworks of ceremony at a move."

"To say nothing of their eternal gratitude," said Harry.

"Oh, that of course. They were ready to weep on my neck with joy that I had brought the dear little plague back to them, and I don't doubt are rejoicing at this moment. But, oh, Harry, you must hear the girls' Paris letters."

"Are they very long?" said Harry.

"Fie now, Harry; you ought to be interested in the girls."

"Why, of course I am," said Harry, pulling out his watch, "only—what time is it?"

"Only half-past ten—not a bit late," said Eva. As she began to read Ida's letter, Harry settled back in the embrace of luxurious chair, with his feet stretched out towards the fire, and gradually the details of Paris life mingled pleasingly with a dream—a fact of which Eva was made aware as she asked him suddenly what he thought of Ida's views on a certain point.

"Now, Harry—you haven't been asleep?"

"Just a moment. The very least in the world," said Harry, looking anxiously alert and sitting up very straight.

Then Eva read Caroline's letter.

"Now, isn't it too bad?" she said, with eagerness, as she finished.

"Yes, it is," said Harry, very gravely.

"But, Eva dear, it's one of those things that you and I can do nothing to help—it is an ananke."

"What's an ananke?"

"That I do, I'm always keeping my eyes open when I go about New York for bits and hints that you can work up, and I'm sure you ought to do something with this old Vanderheyden house. I know there must be ghosts in it; I'm perfectly certain."

"But you wouldn't meet them in a morning call," said Harry "that's contrary to all ghostly etiquette."

"Never mind, I'll get track of them. I'll become intimate with old Miss Dorcas and get her to relate her history, and if there is a ghost-chamber I'll be into it."

"Well, success to you," said Harry; "but to me it looks like a formidable undertaking. Those old ladies are so padded and wadded in buckram."

"Oh, pshaw! there's just what Jack has done for me, he has made a breach in the padding and buckram. Only think of my seeing them at midnight in their night-caps! And such funny night-caps! Why, it's an occasion long to be remembered, and I would be willing to wager anything they are talking it over at this minute; and, of course, you see it's extremely proper and quite a part of the play that I should come in this morning to inquire after the wanderer, and to hope they didn't catch cold, and to talk over the matter generally. Now, I like that old Miss Dorcas; there seems to me to be an immense amount of character behind all her starch and stiffness and I think she's quite worth knowing. She'll be an acquisition if one can only get at her."

"Well, as I said, success and prosperity go with you!" said Harry, as he rose and gathered his papers to go to his morning work.

"I'll go right out with you," said Eva, and she snatched from the hat-tree a shawl and a little morsel of white fleecy worsted, which the initiated surname "a cloud," and tied it over her head. "I'm going right in upon them now," she said.

It was a brisk, frosty morning, and she went out with Harry and darted across from the door. He saw her in the distance, as he went down the street, laughing and kissing her hand to him on the door-step of the Vanderheyden house.

Just then the sound of the door-bell—unheard of in that hour in the morn-the common bow-wow, which means nothing, only that it is a dog speaking; the conversational bark, which, of a moonlight night, means gossip; and the imperative staccato bark which means immediate business. The bark at the front door was of this kind: it was loud and sharp, and with a sort of indignant imperativeness about it, as of one accustomed to be attended to immediately.

Eva flew to the front door and opened it, and there sat Jack, the spoiled darling of Miss Dorcas Vanderheyden and her sister, over the way.

"Why, Jacky! where did you come from?" said Eva. Jacky sat up on his haunches and waved his forepaws in a vigorous manner, as was his way when he desired to be specially ingratiating.

Eva seized him in her arms and carried him into the parlor, thinking that as he had accidentally been shut out for the night she would domesticate him for a while, and return him to his owners on the morrow. So she placed him on the ottoman in the corner and attempted to caress him, but evidently that was not the purpose he had in view. He sprang down, ran to the door and snuffed, and to the front windows and barked imperiously.

"Why, Jack, what do you want?"

He sprang into a chair and barked out at the Vanderheyden house.

Eva looked at the mantel clock—it wanted a few minutes of ten—without, it was a nice moonlight night.

"I'll run across with him, and see what it is," she said. She was young enough to enjoy something like an adventure. She opened the front door and Jack rushed out, and then stopped to see if she would follow; as she stood a moment he laid hold on the skirt of her dress, as if to pull her along.

"Well, Jacky, I'll go," said Eva. Thereat the creature bounded across the street and up the steps of the opposite house, where he stood waiting. She went up and rang the door-bell, which appeared to be what he wanted, as he sat down quite contented on the doorstep.

Nobody came. Eva looked up and down the street. "Jacky, we shall have to go back, they are all asleep," she said. But Jacky barked a contradiction, sprang nearer to the door, and insisted on being let in.

"Well, if you say so, Jacky, I must ring again," she said, and with that she pulled the door-bell louder, and Jack barked with all his might, and ed pleasingly with a dream—a fact of which Eva was made aware as she asked him suddenly what he thought of Ida's views on a certain point.

"Now, Harry—you haven't been asleep?"

"Just a moment. The very least in the world," said Harry, looking anxiously alert and sitting up very straight. Then Eva read Caroline's letter.

"Yes, it is," said Harry, very gravely. "But, Eva dear, it's one of those things that you and I can do nothing to help—it is ananke."

"What's ananke?"

"The name the old Greeks gave to that perverser Something that brought ruin and misery in spite of and out of the best human efforts."

"But I want to bring the two together."

"Be careful how you try, darling. Who knows what the results may be? It's a subject Bolton never speaks of, where he has his own purposes and conclusions; and it's the best thing for Caroline to be where she has as many allurements and distractions as she has in Paris, and such a wise, calm, strong friend as your sister."

"And now, dear, mayn't I go to bed?" he added, with pathos. "You've no idea, dear, how sleepy I am."

"Oh, certainly, you poor boy," said Eva, bustling about and putting up the chairs and books preparatory to leaving the parlor.

"You see," she said, going up stairs, "he was so imperious that I really had to go with him."

"He! Who?"

"Why, Jack to be sure, he did all but speak," said Eva, brush in hand, and letting down her curls before the glass. "You see I was in a reverie over those letters when the barking roused me—I don't think you ever heard such a barking; and when I got him in, he wouldn't be contented—kept insisting on my going over with him—wasn't it strange?"

Harry, by this time composed for the night and half asleep, said it was.

In a few moments he was aroused by Eva's saying, suddenly,

"Harry, I really think I ought to bring them together. Now, couldn't I do something

"With Jack?" said Harry, drowsily.

"Jack!—oh, you sleepy-head! Well, never mind. Good night."

"I'll go right out with you," said Eva, and she snatched from the hat-tree a shawl and a little morsel of white fleecy worsted, which the initiated surname "a cloud," and tied it over her head. "I'm going right in upon them now," she said.

It was a brisk, frosty morning, and she went out with Harry and darted across from the door. He saw her in the distance, as he went down the street, laughing and kissing her hand to him on the door-step of the Vanderheyden house.

Just then the sound of the door-bell—unheard of in that hour in the morning—caused an excitement in the back breakfast-parlor, where Miss Dorcas and Mrs. Betsey were at a late breakfast, with old Dinah standing behind Miss Dorcas' chair to get her morning orders, giggling and disputing them inch by inch, as was her ordinary wont.

The old door-bell had a rustling, harsh, rusty sound, as if cross with a chronic rheumatism of disuse.

"Who under the sun!" said Miss Dorcas. "Jack, be still!"

But Jack wouldn't be still, but ran and snuffed at the door, and barked as if he smelt a legion of burglars.

Eva heard, within the house, the dining-room door open, and then Jack's barking came like a fire of artillery at the crack of the front door, where she was standing. It was slowly opened, and old Dinah's giggling countenance appeared. "Laws bless your soul, Mis' Henderson," she said, flinging the door wide open, "is that you? Jack, be still, sir!"

But Eva had caught Jack in her arms, and walked with him to the door of breakfast room.

"Do pray excuse me," she said, "but I thought I'd just run over and see that you hadn't taken any cold."

The scene within was not uninviting. There was a cheerful wood fire burning on the hearth behind a pair of gigantic old-fashioned pair of brass fire-irons. The little breakfast-table, with its bright old silver and India china, was drawn comfortably up in front. Miss Dorcas had her chair on one side, and Mrs. Betsey on the other, and between them there was a chair drawn up for Jack, where he had been sitting at the time the door-bell rang.

"We are ashamed of our late hours," said Miss Dorcas, when she had made Eva sit down in an old-fashioned claw-footed arm chair in the warmest corner.

Nobody came. Eva looked up and down the street. "Jacky, we shall have to go back, they are all asleep," she said. But Jacky barked a contradiction, sprang nearer to the door, and insisted on being let in.

"Well, if you say so, Jacky, I must ring again," she said, and with that she pulled the door-bell louder, and Jack barked with all his might, and the two succeeded after a few moments in causing a perceptible stir within.

Slowly the door unclosed, and a vision of Miss Dorcas in an old-fashioned broad-frilled night-cap peeped out. She was attired in a black water-proof cloak, donned hastily over her night gear.

"Oh, Jack, you naughty boy!" she exclaimed, stooping eagerly to the prodigal, who sprang tumultuously into her arms and began licking her face.

"I'm so much obliged to you, Mrs. Henderson," she said to Eva. "We went down in the omnibus this afternoon, and we suddenly missed him, the naughty fellow," she said, endeavouring to throw severity into her tones.

Eva related Jack's ruse.

"Did you ever?" said Miss Dorcas "the creature knew that we slept in the back of the house, and he got you to ring our door-bell. Jacky, what a naughty fellow you are!"

Mrs. Betsey now appeared on the where he has his own purposes and conclusions; and it's the best thing for Caroline to be where she has as many allurements and distractions as she has in Paris, and such a wise, calm, strong friend as your sister.

"And now, dear, mayn't I go to bed?" he added, with pathos. "You've no idea, dear, how sleepy I am."

"Oh, certainly, you poor boy," said Eva, bustling about and putting up the chairs and books preparatory to leaving the parlor.

"You see," she said, going up stairs, "he was so imperious that I really had to go with him."

"He! Who?"

"Why, Jack to be sure, he did all but speak," said Eva, brush in hand, and letting down her curls before the glass. "You see I was in a reverie over those letters when the barking roused me—I don't think you ever heard such a barking; and when I got him in, he wouldn't be contented—kept insisting on my going over with him—wasn't it strange?"

Harry, by this time composed for the night and half asleep, said it was.

In a few moments he was aroused by Eva's saying, suddenly,

"Harry, I really think I ought to bring them together. Now, couldn't I do something

"With Jack?" said Harry, drowsily.

"Jack!—oh, you sleepy-head! Well, never mind. Good night."

CHAPTER VIII.

THE VANDERHEYDEN FORTRESS TAKEN.

"Now, Harry, I'll tell you what I'm going to do this morning," said Eva, with the air of a little general, as she poured out his morning coffee.

"And what are you going to do?" replied he, in the proper tone of inquiry.

"Well, I'm going to take the old fortress over the way by storm, this very morning. I'm going to rush through the breach that Jack has opened into the very interior and see what there is there. I'm perfectly dying to get the run of that funny old house; why, Harry, it's just like a novel, and I shouldn't wonder if I could get enough out of it for you to make an article of."

"Thank you, dear; you enter into the spirit of article-hunting like one to the manner born."

harsh, rusty sound, as if cross with a chronic rheumatism of disuse.

"Who under the sun!" said Miss Dorcas. "Jack, be still!"

But Jack wouldn't be still, but ran and snuffed at the door, and barked as if he smelt a legion of burglars.

Eva heard, within the house, the dining-room door open, and then Jack's barking came like a fire of artillery at the crack of the front door, where she was standing. It was slowly opened, and old Dinah's giggling countenance appeared. "Laws bless your soul, Mis' Henderson," she said, flinging the door wide open, "is that you? Jack, be still, sir!"

But Eva had caught Jack in her arms, and walked with him to the door of breakfast room.

"Do pray excuse me," she said, "but I thought I'd just run over and see that you hadn't taken any cold."

The scene within was not uninviting. There was a cheerful wood fire burning on the hearth behind a pair of gigantic old-fashioned pair of brass fire-irons. The little breakfast-table, with its bright old silver and India china, was drawn comfortably up in front. Miss Dorcas had her chair on one side, and Mrs. Betsey on the other, and between them there was a chair drawn up for Jack, where he had been sitting at the time the door-bell rang.

"We are ashamed of our late hours," said Miss Dorcas, when she had made Eva sit down in an old-fashioned claw-footed arm-chair in the warmest corner; "we don't usually breakfast so late, but, the fact is, Betsey was quite done up with the adventure last night."

"Perhaps," said Eva, "I had better have tried keeping Jack till morning."

"Oh no, indeed, Mrs. Henderson," said Mrs. Betsey, with energy; "I know it's silly, but I shouldn't have slept a wink all night if Jack hadn't come home. You know he sleeps with me," she added.

Eva did not know it before, but she said "Yes" all the same, and the good lady rushed on:

AN UNSPOKEN QUESTION.

I thought I must be dreaming
The day you whispered low,
And told me the sweet secret
That I alone must know.

I listened quite in silence,
Perhaps you thought me cold;
My heart was overflowing
With tenderness untold.

Just for one fleeting moment,
One only, did you stay,
Were you and I both dreaming
That happy summer's day?

"ALMOST PERSUADED."

Almost persuaded now to believe;
Almost persuaded Christ to receive;
Seems now some soul to say,
Go, spirit, go thy way,
Some more convenient day
On thee I'll call.

Almost persuaded, come, come to-day;
Almost persuaded, turn not away;
Jesus invites you here,
Angels are wandering near,
Prayers rise from hearts so dear;
O wanderer come.

Almost persuaded, harvest is past!
Almost persuaded, doom comes at last!
Almost cannot avail;
Almost is but to fail!
Sad, sad that mournful wail—
Almost—but lost!

One hundred years ago every man cut his coat according to his cloth—every man was estimated at his real value—shoddy was not known—no body had struck "ile"—and true merit the honest worth were the only grounds for promotion.

WHY THE SUN-DIAL FAILED.

Old Mills, the optican at New Castle sold a sun-dial to Pittman a few weeks ago with the assurance that it was quite a reliable time-keeper. About a fortnight afterward, Pittman called, one day at the shop and said:

"Say, Mills, that sun-dial ain't worth a cent. It's no good as a time piece, anyway."

"Mayby you haven't got it fixed in a good place," said Mills.

"Yes I have," replied Pittman; "but I tell you it won't work. There must be something wrong about it."

"No it's in perfect order," said Mills. "Did you ever time it by your watch?"

"Certainly I did. I've stood close to it a hundred times exactly at seven and the cussed thing has never struck the time once."

"Merciful Moses! Why, you didn't expect to strike the hours, did you? Thunder! why, it don't strike, of course. It has no works inside."

"That's what gets me," said Pittman. "If it ain't got no inside, how's it goin' to go?"

"Mr. Pittman, where have you put that sun-dial? In the garden?"

"Garden! Be gracious, no! What do I want with a timepiece in the garden? It's hung in the settin' room agin the wall."

Then Mills explained it to him, and Pittman has since traded the sun-dial off for a four dollar clock.

FORTY DOLLARS THIS TIME.—"Open that safe," said a merchant to an expert who had been sent for. "Open it in twenty minutes and I will give you $20."

The safe was opened in five minutes. "All right said the merchant, "here is $10; enough for five minutes work."

The $10 was looked at but not taken, and the next moment the safe was closed as tight as ever.

"Oh, how is that?" "The how," said the man, "is that I charge nothing for closing the safe, but $20 more for the next opening—$40 in all—and want my pay in ad-

The amount required in each case will be stated on the form of Tender.

The cheque or money thus sent in, will be returned to the respective parties whose Tenders are not accepted.

For the due fulfilment of the contract, satisfactory security will be required on real estate or by deposit of money, public or municipal securities, or bank stock to the amount of five per cent on the bulk sum of the contract, of which the sum sent in with the Tender will be considered a part.

Ninety per cent only of the progress estimates will be paid until the completion of the works.

To each Tender must be attached the actual signatures of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of these conditions, as well as the due performance of works embraced in the contract.

This Department does not however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any Tender.

Of course he did, and whoever has any thing to say on the subject can now speak.

We advise all young people to acquire the habit of correct speaking and writing, and to abandon as soon as possible any use of slang words or phrases. The longer you live the more difficult the acquirement of correct language will be, and if the golden age of youth, the proper season for the acquisition of language, be passed in abuse, the unfortunate victim, is neglected, very properly doomed to talk slang for life. Money is unnecessary to produce this education. Every man has it in his power. He is merely to use the language which he hears, to form his tastes from the best speakers and poets in the country, to treasure up choice phrases his memory and habituate himself to their use, avoiding at the same time that pedantic precision and bombast which shows the weakness of vain ambition rather than the polish of an educated man.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS" FROM CHESAPE.

As the season of compliments and congratulations is at hand, we heartily wish our customers and friends a very "Merry Christmas" and a "Happy New Year," with many returns of the festive season. We are deeply grateful because of the more than liberal patronage which we have received during the past year. It is a significant fact that while others are bemoaning the less trade and dull times, our business has steadily increased with each month and by the close of this year we shall be able to show a clear increase of thirty per cent over last years' trade. So much for Fair Square dealing and no "Jewing" it is a proof to us that our endeavors to keep our stock constantly assorted with the newest and most attractive goods, and also to dispose of them at the Smallest Living Profits, have been duly appreciated by the discriminating public. We shall continue to preserve the same course of action as during the past year, mending where we have erred or changing our course where our experience with a large and increasing business and extended knowledge of the requirements of the trade may dictate. We hope, with the inaugural of the new year, to see many new customers as well as old friends, and every energy will be put forth to please and give the very best value for their money. We may mention here that although we have always been noted for keeping the BEST BLACK LUSTRES, we have lately made arrangements for the supply of a PARTICULAR BRAND, which is superior to anything we have ever before offered, and we believe, superior in value to anything now offered for sale in town. Everything in the line of Dry Goods, Carpets, Millinery, &c., is now offered at very close prices. A call and inspection will convince.

Again wishing you many Happy New Years,
We remain faithfully yours,
E. HOOPER & SON.
